Under the instructions of head nurse Niu and technicians from various work areas, visitors were divided into 3 groups to visit 3 areas: decontamination area, inspection, packaging area and sterilization area and sterile storage area. They learned the design and layout of CSSD along with equipment and devices used in the CSSD. They had a direct observation of the reprocessing of reusable instruments that require 10 major procedures and more than 30 steps. In the meantime, they had an in-depth discussion about clinical relevant issues such as instrument receiving and counting.

During the visit, participants were impressed by the rigorous work attitude, solid theoretical knowledge and specialized skills of every CSSD member. They work in a noisy and stuffy environment; they repeat the same work every day and seek pleasure out of drudgery. Even though they are not rewarded by flowers or applause, they stick to their position and stay committed. They escort the safety of medical instruments through hard work. They are the "heroes behind the scenes" of medical safety quality!
